

BOSTON ABLAZE.

the saying that men differ, for carrying away to Charlestown one lot of type from a Boston newspaper office last night one drayman demanded and received $100, while another said, "Pay me what you think is right," and when a $20 note was given him handed back $30 in change, saying indignantly as he did so, "Do you think I am mean enough to take advantage of a man in trouble?" There was fun, too, in the general distribution of boots and shoes, which took place on Pearl street during the fire. Finding it impossible to save all of their stock the dealers threw open the doors and allowed the crowd to secure what booty they could. Hundreds now wear shoes who never wore shoes before. A ludicrous incident occurred on Hamilton place. "Major Grant," as she is called, a semi-imbecile female, with an immense waterfall and pug nose, became dissatisfied with the view from Fremont street and decided to obtain a better quarter. Accordingly she picked up somebody else's chair in front of a store and pulled her dress up to her ankles and dived in; then, carrying the chair to the centre of the place,

SHE SAT DOWN AND GAZED

placidity at the progress of the flames. While she was doing so, however, a rabble of newsboys gathered about. They fastened a long piece of rope to the chair, of which Mrs. "Major Grant" was oblivious, and, after a moment's consultation, jerked the rope vigorously, leaving the victim sprawling in a puddle. Mrs. Major Grant was practical. Boston common proved itself of really practical value during the fire, and indeed its uses are still manifest. From early in the evening of Saturday till early in the morning of to-day baggage vans of all sorts and descriptions deposited their contents on the Common. The location of the little park in the centre of the city, and the fact that there could be but little danger to anything placed there, rendered it a convenient asylum for all sorts of household goods. Pots, kettles and pans, beds and beddings, crying women and hungry babies were plentiful enough.

THIEVES ARRESTED.

The station houses are so full that thieves are released after depriving them of their plunder, and hence it was impossible to provide sufficient shelter for the thousands who found themselves without a roof to cover their heads. There were, therefore, many who bivouacked on Boston Common. There had been, until this afternoon, great difficulty in obtaining watchers for these goods to guard against predatory excursions from the ghoul who always haunts a great fire, and, therefore, householders were obliged to watch their own property. Fortunately for them the night was clear and not very cold, so that they were not subjected to any very great degree of discomfort.

THE FIRST MEETING OF CITIZENS.

Public action was taken to-day in regard to the fire. Both branches of the City Council held a well-attended session by the Mayor's order, who stated the object for which they had been convened, and said it was necessary that prompt action should be taken to meet the exigencies. Alderman Jenks offered the following resolution:—

Resolved, That the terrible calamity which has befallen our city makes it incumbent on the City Council to give immediate expression to its deep sympathy for the sufferers by the fire, and to extend aid in the most generous measure to those who have been deprived of their homes.

Resolved, That Messrs. Jenks, Dayton and Little, with such as the Common Council may join, constitute a Relief Committee, for the purpose of extending immediate aid to such persons and families as need assistance, and that said committee be requested to act in the premises with the promptness which the exigency of the case seems to require.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted. Alderman Clark moved that the thanks of the Board be tendered the Fire Department, and the Committee on Fire Department be authorized to take such measures to suppress the conflagration as they may deem advisable. The motion was adopted.

The Mayor suggested that a meeting of the Board be held at ten o'clock to-morrow forenoon, to decide upon such action as would be necessary for the relief of the sufferers, and, on motion, it was voted that when the Aldermen adjourned it be till Monday, at ten o'clock A. M.

Alderman Poland moved that the different railroad companies be requested to furnish platform cars for the removal of the debris as soon as possible, and the motion was carried.

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The members of the Common Council were called to order by the President, Mr. Dickinson, who stated that an informal conference had been held by the Mayor and several members of the city government, and the feeling was general that the emergency required that the city government should give prompt expression of their sympathy, and announce their purpose to care for the unfortunate before there was an opportunity to call a meeting as required by the ordinance. Resolutions had been prepared, and he expected them without delay from the upper branch.

At this point the resolutions adopted by the Aldermen were presented, read and adopted unanimously. It was suggested that when the Common Council adjourn it be to meet at the same time as the Board of Aldermen meet; and after the result of the Aldermanic proceedings had been announced it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be till Monday, at ten A. M. The President, Mr. Dickinson, now remarked that this was a time for action and not words, and outside of the proceedings of the City Council every member should strive individually to do his utmost for the relief of the unfortunate people who were made homeless by the calamity; to act with generosity wherever a case of suffering presented itself, and to trust to the City Governor for an endorsement of his action. The misfortune to the poor people was even a greater loss than the immense damage to property, and every effort should be made to alleviate want and provide for the shelter of the homeless.

ANOTHER MEETING.

Subsequently a meeting of prominent citizens was held at the Mayor's room in the City Hall, and it was very largely attended. Mayor Gaston called the meeting to order, and after a few appropriate remarks he was followed by Hon. Wm. Gray, Hon. A. H. Rice, ex-Mayor W. Lightman, Colonel Walker, Hon. Wm. B. Spooner, and Judge Abbott, who spoke hopefully of the prospect, and advised prompt and energetic action in order to alleviate the sufferings of the needy, as well as for rebuilding the burnt district. To be despondent and inactive at such a time did not become the city of Boston, and the gentleman suggested the importance of possessing nerve at this trying crisis, in order that the city should retain its proud prosperity.

MAYOR BUFFON, AT LYNN.

addressed the meeting, and said the people of Lynn deeply sympathized with Boston in this hour of mourning, and no municipality in the country would more deeply feel the blow outside of Boston than the city he represented. Whatever was asked for from that city Boston would have, either in men, money or means to fight the devouring element. Already the Fire Department of Lynn was represented here, and further aid would be sent if necessary. "Be not disheartened, said he: 'The spirit evoked by Bostonians in the past should go forward. No Boston man should say, 'Die.' You have the energy and the enterprise, and you can redeem the city from this terrible blow."

A RELIEF COMMITTEE.

The following committee of citizens was announced to take charge of the arrangements for the relief of the sufferers:—W. Gray, William Chaffin, Colonel Henry Walker, Otis Norcross, A. H. Rice, E. J. Taber, B. G. Abbott, J. A. Cobb, William B. Spooner, J. M. Wightman, George C. Richardson, Rev. J. D. Fulton, Robert Johnson, F. W. Lincoln, Thomas Russell, Augustus Parker, H. L. Hall, George Lewis, General James A. Cunningham, H. C. Crowell, J. H. Chadwick, H. L. Pierce, William Pope, N. J. Bradlee, Franklin Williams, William Gaston, Rev. William B. Wright, N. B. Shurtleeff, Eben D. Jordan, Josiah Quincy, Rev. William D. Wright.

M. F. Dickinson advised prompt action for the present, as well as for the future.

BANDS OF RUFIANS.

were in town and more were coming with the intention of burning and pillaging, and he hoped the meeting would not adjourn until some action was taken to provide for a large volunteer force of police to save from insult and injury those who are dear to us. Judge Abbott said that the force of militia and police was sufficiently large to protect the city, and he was not afraid and hoped no other citizen was afraid of any band of ruffians that may infest the city.

Otis Norcross said that 1,900 men were under arms and on duty from the militia force, and more would be sent by General Cunningham if necessary. He bore testimony to the faithful and prompt manner in which these men performed their duties. Mayor Gaston then read a despatch from the Mayor of Providence tendering the services of the patrol force of that city.

THE CHIEF ENGINEER'S STATEMENT.

Damrell, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, appeared at this point, and was received with applause. He was invited to address the meeting and in response, said that the fire was now so well under control that he contemplated sending to their homes the out-of-town companies. He said the engineers of the department had performed their duties admirably and he was proud of them. The cause of the extensive conflagration was the fact that buildings of low construction were in the city, and a fire in the upper stories cannot be readily reached. He had always deprecated this style of architecture and attributed the fire to this fact.

Alderman Clark hoped that no engines would be sent home till the fire was completely subdued. Chief Damrell was a good and efficient officer at an ordinary fire, but no one man could manage and he hoped that the committee would suggest that every engine be retained. (Applause.) After some further remarks the meeting adjourned.

SUBSEQUENTLY A MEETING of the General Committee was held, at which Mr. William Gray presided. It was voted that the meetings of the committee be held every forenoon in the large committee room in the City Hall, and that a bureau of relief be organized, the headquarters of which would be at the Charity Bureau, Chardon street. The gentlemen appointed to constitute the Bureau were Messrs. Rice, Lincoln, Cobb, Pierce and Chadwick. On motion of ex-Mayor Lincoln a sub-committee was appointed to prepare a plan of action and report to the general committee as soon as possible. The committee consisted of Messrs. Gray, Caffin, Norcross, Abbott, George C. Richardson, Hallitt and Crowell.

MERCANTILE BUILDINGS DESTROYED.

A recapitulation of at least a summary as full as can now be made in the hurry-burry of the excitement shows that there have been comparatively few public buildings destroyed and only a few public institutions lose their edifices. The burned buildings, however, were all of a most costly character and almost universally more imposing than any of a public character in the city. The mercantile houses in Franklin, Summer and Devonshire streets and Winthrop square were among the most costly and finest specimens of architecture in the country, and the wholesale houses on Pearl, Congress and Milk streets were all of the most lofty and substantial character.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The principal buildings of a public nature which have been wholly consumed are as follows:—Boston Post office, United States Sub-Treasury; Cathedral building, corner of Franklin and Devonshire streets; Boston Post establishment; Boston Transcript establishment; Monk's building; Boston, Hartford and Erie depot, New England Type foundry, Boston and Sandwich Glass Company, Mount Washington Glass Works.

NATIONAL BANKS.

National Bank of North America, National Reserve Bank, Continental National Bank, Hyde and Leather National Bank, Emigrant Savings Bank, Freeman National Bank, New England Trust Company, Mount Vernon National Bank, Spencer, Villa & Co.'s banking house.

Trinity (Episcopal) church, Purchase Street Catholic church, Wright & Potter's State printing office. The Post office and the Sub-Treasury were in the same building, it being the well-known edifice on State street formerly celebrated as the Merchants' Exchange, and a portion of it at one time was known as Derby's Hotel. It was a spacious structure, and besides the accommodations it afforded the government there was a large portion of it occupied as lawyers' offices. Probably the edifice was worth $200,000. The Boston Pilot office and Emigrant's Savings Bank occupied the magnificent structure on Franklin street, built and owned by Patrick Donohue, the well-known publisher of the Pilot and numerous Catholic works of wide celebrity. The Transcript building, on Washington street, was, without exception, the finest daily newspaper establishment in the country east of New York city. It has been built within a year, and had only been occupied a few months. The loss to Dutton & Son, the publishers, cannot be less than a quarter of a million. The new office of the Boston Post, corner of Devonshire and Water streets, although not destroyed was very badly damaged, and the paper will not be issued for several days. This building, too, is a new one, and possesses all the modern improvements of a model newspaper establishment. A large portion of it is occupied by insurance and other offices. The Journal and Traveller offices were threatened and the proprietors moved much of their property, but the inconvenience thus caused will not prevent the papers from appearing to-morrow. Not a single hotel was destroyed, although it was at one time feared that Young's, Parker's, the Tremont and the United States and the surrounding and intervening smaller ones would go. The two churches named above were the only ones burned or damaged. Wright & Potter's state printing establishment was the largest of its kind in New England. The Western Union Telegraph Company, fearing that their office was to go with the general multitude, moved out at about four o'clock, and have since established themselves in the Boston and Albany, and Boston and Providence depots. No arrangement has as yet been made about mails; but probably the Postmaster will prove himself equal to the emergency.

THIEVES, THIEVING AND PLUNDERING.

There was of course armies of thieves and plunderers everywhere, and although upwards of five hundred have thus far been arrested, probably not one quarter of the vultures have been discovered. The station houses and the Tombs are all full, and in many cases where the depositions have been insignificant, and the depositions young. The plunder has been taken and the plunderers set at liberty. This has been absolutely necessary to-day on account of the crowded state of the station houses, but to-morrow secure quarters of sufficient capacity for all offenders will be provided.

ATTEMPT TO GARROTE THE PRESIDENT OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.

Early this morning, while Mr. Dickinson, President of the Common Council, was on his way home from his law office, with some valuable papers enclosed in two bags, he was accosted near Boulton street by three men, who ordered him to surrender the bags. Being possessed of considerable pluck, Mr. Dickinson decided to do so, whereupon one of the fellows grabbed him by the collar and made an effort to garrote him. Mr. Dickinson kicked the fellow and started on a run. The ruffian continued to hold him by the collar, however, until a police officer appeared, when the latter was informed of the state of the case and requested to put the man under arrest. The officer, although knowing the President of the Council, said the man was all right, that he could vouch for him, and declined to arrest him. Mr. Dickinson thereupon took the officer's name and number, and a complaint will probably be made against

THIS "GUARDIAN" OF THE PEACE.

One of the members of the Police Committee of the Board of Aldermen states that from his personal knowledge many firemen deserted their posts and ran home with goods removed from buildings. When charged with this conduct they replied that they had received permission to remove the goods from the owners. The Chief was informed of the transaction and he peremptorily ordered the men to remain at their posts under pain of dishonorable discharge from the department. The officers of the Charlestown Police Department volunteered their services early this morning, but exhibited a reluctance to perform any labor. Upon being asked why they volunteered some of them replied that they came here to see the fire. The Chief of Police had subsequently, under instructions from the Police Committee of the Board of Aldermen, ordered these parties outside the lines. About two o'clock, when the fire got into the rear of some large boot and shoe houses on the west side of Pearl street, and there was not the slightest hope of saving the stock, the crowd rushed in, broke open boxes and cases and helped themselves indiscriminately to shoes and boots. No one objected, and the general impression seemed to be that the stock had thus better be distributed for private use than utterly destroyed. The articles were carried off by the box and armful, and many sat down on the curbstones and donned the new leather on the spot.

ing all habitations previous to this fire, are upwards of $1,400,000. Our agents are directed to improve the opportunity to secure all good business offering at full rates. H. KELLOGG, President.
It is probable that the loss will be much less than the aggregate of policies, as large stocks of goods were insured.
The Hartford Company has issued the following circular to its agents:—
Our entire amount at risk in the burnt district and vicinity is $600,000. From the latest information received our probable loss is about five hundred thousand dollars. The old Hartford has $2,500,000 assets, and will meet its engagements promptly, as it did at Chicago.
GEORGE L. CHASE, President.
The Atlas's losses, though not definitely ascertained, but carefully approximated, will not exceed seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars.
The total losses by the Hartford Companies will exceed but a trifle two million dollars. They are all safe.

THE FIRE BROKEN OUT AGAIN.

A Second Series of Disasters Threatened—The Conflagration Again Raging—The Horrors of Darkness—All the Gas in the City Going Out.

BOSTON, Nov. 11—2:30 A. M.

The fire has again broken out in the stores of Marsh & Co. and Shure, Crump & Low, jewellers, and is raging violently. It is hoped, however, that the Fire Department will be able to keep it under.

The gas is going out all over the city.

SYMPATHY FROM OTHER CITIES.

Flurry Among the Bankers.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 10.
The news of the Boston fire created great excitement in this city. Crowds thronged the newspaper offices, awaiting each bulletin. Only two insurance companies of this city—the Amazon and Triumph—have risks in Boston; to what extent is not divulged. Several bankers here have received despatches from their New York partners to loan nothing to-morrow and look out for a panic. Bankers here are telegraphing to the country to collect loans due. Other bankers express the opinion that there is no danger of panic. The Common Council meets to-morrow to offer relief if needed.

Mayor Davis has telegraphed Mayor Gaston, of Boston, tendering sympathy and asking for the number made homeless.
